

Disclaimer: First Choice Telehealth offers this information to illustrate the potential benefits of its service. Telehealth is not suitable for use in every administrative or clinical situation; you must rely on your own administrative acumen and clinical judgment to determine whether, in any given case, telehealth is an appropriate form of care. Similarly, not every organization or practice will realize the same results. FCT is happy to provide information for you regarding its methods and philosophy, and of course you are welcome to seek advice from those you trust, but in the end only you can analyze, for your own organization or practice, the benefits and limitations of telehealth in general and of FCT's services in particular.